Reading, Under Force, At Big Domestic Receipts Push Price Down; Corn Bearish.

New York, N. Y. Feb 16.—The cheer-ful tone of the stock market at the close of last week was absent this morning, and although price changes were narrow there was an undercur-rent of heaviness.

Chicago, His, Feb. 19.—For the first time in months wheat today sold at less than a dollar a bushel, because of hig receipts at domestic terminals, feneral selling carried down prices, but under the dollar market there was morning, and although price changes were narrow there was an undercurrent of heaviness.

From a speculative view interest converged in Reading, which was under pressure. Selling of this stock was based on the expectation that the supreme court decision in the anthracitic case might be rendered today.

The possibility of decisions in other important cases had the effect of restricting trading elsewhere, and after the orders on hand at the opening wore disposed of little was done.

Operators took advantage of feeble rallies to sell stock, but the general run of prices did not recede much below last week's figures.

Bonds were steady.
